Lucy's Legacy: The Hidden Treasure of Ethiopia (8/31/07 – 9/01/08) The World Premier of Ethiopia's exhibition shares their rich history and culture with their world-acclaimed archaeological find. The 3.2 million-year-old remains of a female hominid known as "Lucy" – who is thought to be one of mankind's earliest ancestors. Lucy's Legacy tells the amazing story of Ethiopia over the past 5 million years. View artifacts Ethiopians believe stretches back to the son of King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba.

Leonardo da Vinci: Man, Inventor, Genius (3/07/08 – 9/14/08) Da Vinci is one of the greatest geniuses the world has ever known. More than 500 years ago, Da Vinci designed flying machines, robots, submarines, underwater breathing gear and solar powered industries. This remarkable internationally acclaimed exhibition displays over 60 models of his famous machines, inventions and designs based on ancient codices.

Geopalooza! A Hard Rock Anthology (5/23/08 – 8/24/08) Marvel at massive amethyst and citrine geodes taller than a person jammed with gleaming purple and golden crystals. Admire an array of huge mineral crystals, including a gargantuan gypsum crystal from Mexico's "Cave of Giants," home of the largest crystals ever found. As you make your way through the exhibit, listen to the five decades of - rock music!

Dinosaur Mummy CSI: Cretaceous Science Investigation (12/19/08 - 9/07/09) The world premiere exhibition featuring Leonardo, a 77 million-year-old adult duckbilled dinosaur, is the most perfectly fossilized plant-eating dinosaur ever discovered—with almost all of his skin still intact. His remains are 90 percent covered with fossilized skin, The term "mummy" is used in reference to denote that much of the dinosaur's soft tissue, skin and internal organs, appear to have been fossilized as well, along with the bones
